ALLEGED WIFE MURDER.

Trial of Frank Ferris Charged with Killing His Wife-Testimony for the Prosecution, &c. COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Recorder Hoffman.
Yesterday the trialiof Frank Ferris, indicted for the murder of his wife, which is charged to have been committed on the 9th of September last, at No. 32 James street, was commenced in this court. He was represented by Mesers. Anthon and Wm. F. Kintzing, Jr., who, as the first juror was called, interposed a challenge to the array of jurors, which was overruled. This matter having been settled, the counsel interposed no further obstacle, and as the case has not been extensively published in the newspapers, there was very little difficulty in obtaining a jury.

District Attorney Hall then gave a succinct parrative in the newspapers, there was very little difficulty in obtaining a jury.

District Attorney Hall then gave a succinct narrative of the facts the prosecution expected to prove, and the order in which they would be presented, and made some interesting remarks upon the subject of insanity, suggested by an expression which fell from the lips of one of the jurors called, who said he did not believe any man murdered another in his right mind.

Assistant District Attorney Hutchings proceeded to examine the witnesses for the prosecution was Dr. Cuahman, who testified that he was a surgeon in the New York Hospital; examined the body of Mary Ferris after death, and found a compound fracture of the skull, and an extensive isceration of the brain, which extended from the forchead to the back part of the head; the wquand could have been inflicted with an axe; death was taused by compression and concussion of the brain, resulting from the infliction of a blow.

Dr. Magee, also a physician attached to the hospital, said he was present when Mary Ferris was admitted to the hospital, about ton o clock in the evening of the 9th of September, 1884; she was in a dying condition, with a very extensive, contused lacerated weind in the scalp, which communicated with a very extensive frectore of the skull, extending over the eye to the back of the head; she was in nearbile; the concussion was the cause of death, which was brought about by a blow. The axe was shown to the witness, who said that such an instrument might have produced the wound. The decoused appeared to be a healthy worn an.

Officer Kennedy being sworn and examined said—I saw the prisoner and his wife standing on the sidewalk opposite their house in James street on the evening of the 9th of September, between eight and nine o'clock; the prisoner wanted to go up stairs, and ahe did not want to have him; the witness told him not to go up stairs, but he did; witness left and patrolled his beat, and in about the required process of the prisoner wanted to be head; the prisone she said that the prisoner, when in her room, sain thoped the Virgin Mary and the policeman would take him before nine o'clo'-b'-cat night.

Catharine Baker, who the in the same house, testified that about three month, before the killing she heard Mra. Ferris screaming; saw her run down stairs, and heard her cry "murder," "watch," blood was running from her head and the prisoner was following her.

Mary Douglas swore that on the morning of the killing Ferris called at her house in Hamilton street, and on the witness telling him that she saw his wife about a month ago, he made the remark "I would see more before nine o'clock that night."

Sergeant Williams, of the Fourth precinct, testified that on the day of the killing the prisoner entered the station house and made a complaint against his wife, stating she refused to let him go into the house; he was told that if he were quiet and went home he would get in.

William Evans, who lives in the basement of the prisoner's house, testified to seeing Ferris sharpening a knife on the stone.

William H Lawes, a drugelst, was called to testify to something Mrs. Ferris said; but as he was not positive as to the identity of the deceased the testimony was excluded.

This, with the exception of another witness, who was ciuded.

This, with the exception of another witness, who was absent, closed the case for the prosecution.

The court then adjourned till this (Wednesday) morning, when Mr. Kintzing will open for the defence.
